Brushed nickel for the most sophisticated taps

The latest global trends in top-quality design

The brushed nickel finish arrives in Ramon Soler®'s most design-led collections. A finish as elegant as it is avant-garde, betting on the latest trends, which gives the taps a contemporary aesthetic and extreme durability.

Alexia matt nickel by Ramon Soler®

A finish ideal for avant-garde bathrooms as well as urban bathrooms, and even for bathrooms seeking an industrial touch. This finish will catch every eye, making the taps the star piece of the room. The addition of this new Brushed Nickel finish is made possible by the revolutionary PVD (physical vapour deposition) techniques, a physical rather than chemical process, with a resistance similar to chrome plating. They are characterised by exceptional surface hardness and resistance to wear and abrasion, to corrosion, and to solvents and detergents, and have a negligible environmental impact. Collections such as Alexia, Tzar and Urban Chic feature the brushed nickel finish, characterised by its timeless beauty and handcrafted look. Basin taps, shower and washbasin columns, and shower and bath-shower sets all enjoy this new finish.

Tzar matt nickel by Ramon Soler®

The new finish combined with the highest performance results in eco-friendly, safe taps with a long life. In addition to the resistance and durability that the finish provides, these taps include water and energy saving systems. These aspects give the user safety and peace of mind which, together with the beauty of the tap, make it a very good option for any bathroom. It is an essential element for any adult seeking sophisticated taps, as well as offering a degree of safety for more vulnerable people such as children or the elderly. The brand surprises us once again, improving the aesthetics of collections we thought were unbeatable.
