A bathroom you'll fall in love with

Fitted with the avant-garde matt black Alexia collection by Ramon Soler®

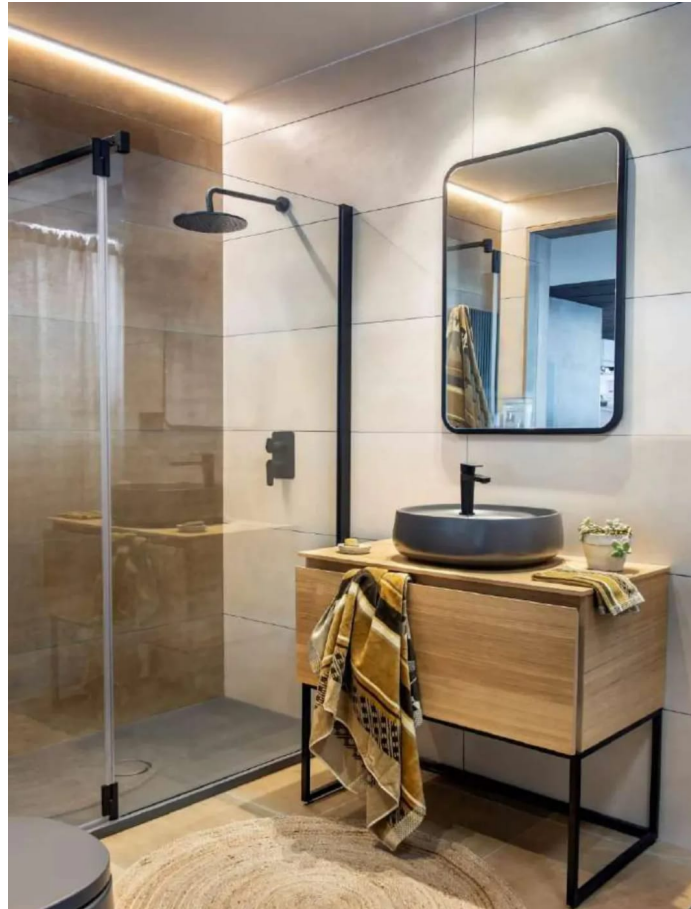

We should not forget that most urban bathrooms are not large, but that does not mean they cannot be tremendously beautiful. Small bathrooms are a very common solution today, and one that can be made the most of by creating a design just as beautiful and functional as in large bathrooms. This is possible by making use of every corner and centimetre for storage, in a simple way without overloading the space. It is possible to create a practical, modern and comfortable space where you can find everything you need. Walking into a small bathroom can give a feeling of spaciousness if a good colour palette is chosen, and there is no need to give up the ever-elegant colour black. The chicest option for an urban bathroom is the matt black taps by Ramon Soler®. The design avant-garde is betting on matt black taps because they create bathrooms full of character.

Bathroom with matt black shower set and matt black single-lever basin mixer from the Alexia collection by Ramon Soler®

PROJECT

This small and attractive bathroom features a variety of straight lines with curved lines, creating a contrast that combines perfectly with the black taps. It is a design that invites relaxation through its beige tones and its carefully considered lighting. The porcelain wall tiles inspired by natural stones in earthy tones, together with the wooden bathroom unit, provide a connection with nature, and we break the monotony with bold black brushstrokes in the space. The space shows original black tones reflected in details such as the frame of the bathroom unit, the mirror frame, the profiles of the screen, and the Ramon Soler® taps.

TAPS

A matt black finish tap brings elegance and design, as well as reducing the excess brightness that is often found in modern bathrooms. Matt black taps and shower systems become the differentiating element, because they accentuate the shapes and avant-garde style of the bathroom. This bathroom stands out for being fitted with the concealed shower tap and the matt black single-lever basin mixer from the Alexia collection. The Alexia collection by Ramon Soler® had already won us over with its exquisite design, but this time it captivates us once again with its new matt black finish, visible in this project, which sets out to win over the most exclusive bathrooms with a new finish that is as elegant as it is avant-garde, embracing the latest trends. Its design, inspired by conical forms, achieves a delicate yet striking effect, with a conical spout crowned by a lever with soft, minimalist lines. The volumes of the tap and the interplay of its dimensions make Alexia a tap of ideal harmony, delivering total comfort for the user.

The addition of this range of matt black finishes is possible thanks to the electrostatic-over-galvanised technique, which provides resistance and durability, since quality is an essential requirement for Ramon Soler®

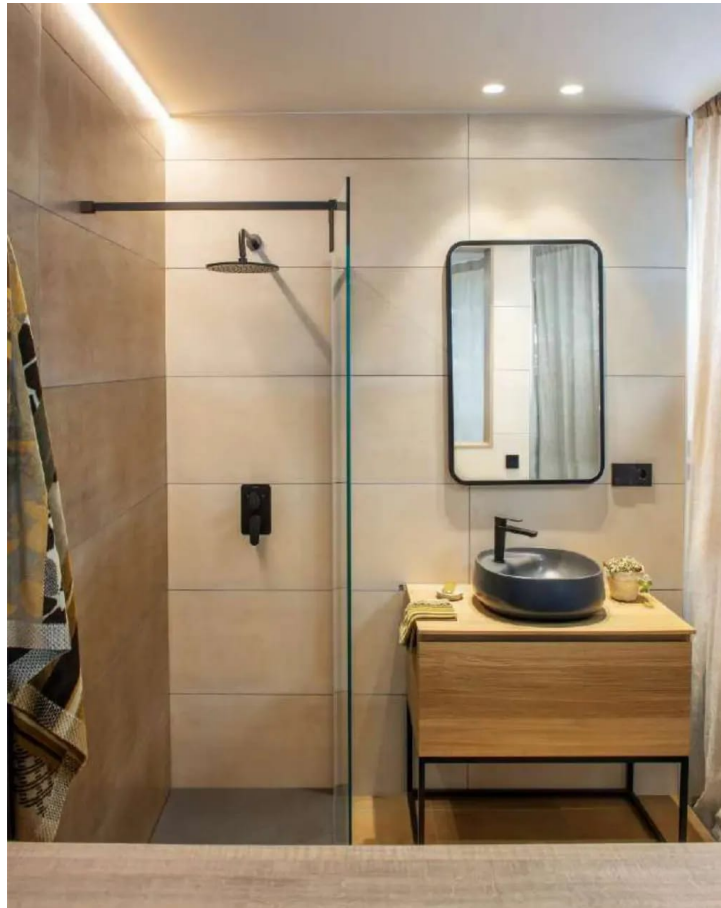

The matt black tap proposal is perfect for playing with contrasts, and also lets you take a risk and set a trend.

SANITARYWARE

In this project, the toilet, the shower tray and the bowl-shaped basin have all been chosen in a dark grey shade, to soften the atmosphere and give it an avant-garde, sophisticated feel. This has helped avoid overloading the bathroom while still filling it with character. It is a bathroom thought out down to the last detail that reflects the sobriety given by black tones, creating a distinctive space.

The distinguished Ramon Soler® bathroom shows us that black suits any style of bathroom regardless of its size. We can also see how this colour gains importance depending on the set of elements that make up the bathroom.
